

Your SEEK Story Framework

Use this section to build the narrative context for a learning project. SEEK grounds your learner in meaning before asking for effort.

The Story Foundation

16. What is the name of your learning project — course, program, training, coaching relationship, or curriculum?

CS-110 // Expedition Report

17. Who is the central character of this story? (The learner themselves, a fictional user, a professional persona, etc.)

Sasakia Charonda, Translator

18. What challenge or problem does this character face at the beginning? Be specific and vivid.

They have to travel to the dark caves, which would be dangerous because of the creatures that lurk.

19. What does the world look like once this character has successfully completed the learning journey?

When they return after the journey, they rescue La Piz who then tells them the code to protect the world thus ending the madness.

The Narrative Arc

20. Write a 2-3 sentence story opener you could use to begin your course, session, program, or module. Make it personal and specific.

It discovered the dark caves of Cranyoen. The mysterious and dangerous creatures that lurk inside. Team work is crucial to avoid fatal situations.

21. How will you weave this story throughout the material? Describe 2-3 places where the narrative will resurface.

They will resurface through the future stories that come after. For example, this story will likely resurface through the story of Kairova.
